an incisive historical and theological insight into the great 19th century baptist with emphasis on the doctrines that moulded his life and thought the story of charles haddon spurgeon s life is nothing less than titanic within 2 years and 6 months of accepting the pastorate of the new park street chapel as a boy of 19 the sunday service grew from 242 to over 7 000 in attendance what can account for the meteoric rise in popularity why did so many wish to hear his sermons it is the same reason why one ought to study the sermons of spurgeon to this day in a famished land of moralism he preached the bread of jesus christ containing the first three volumes of the sixty three volumes published from the metropolitan tabernacle pulpit this book holds 164 sermons as plump as a partridge and as full of meat as an egg david a attebury is currently pursuing a masters of divinity from the southern baptist theological seminary in louisville kentucky two lectures a catalogue of bible commentaries and exposition together with a complete textual index of sermons students of the word do not find it easy to choose which works to buy and their slender stores are often wasted on books of a comparatively worthless kind many are persuaded that they should expound the word but being unversed in the original tongues they can only fall back upon the help of their english concordances and are left floundering about when a sound comment would direct their thoughts to that end spurgeon compiled this catalog for the use of ministers of average attainments yet who are thoughtful and discerning men the brief reviews are spurgeon own opinions the question of how theology shapes a christian historian s reading of the past has been debated thoroughly in various academic periodicals should historians recognise the role of providence in their accounts of past events should they sympathise with their subject s theology can objectivity be lost due to theological bias and last but not least is there a compromise of faith if one writes natural instead of supernatural history such questions are important for understanding the historian s profession arnold dallimore who trained and specialised in pastoral ministry in canada wrote an influential biography of the revivalist george whitefield as well as others on charles and susanna wesley edward irving and charles spurgeon how did his reformed theological perspective impact his historiography how does his work fit into larger historiographical debates concerning the nature of christian history while other books look at christian historiography using abstract and methodological approaches this book examines the subject precisely by looking at the life and work of an individual historian it does so by placing dallimore in the context of being a minister in twentieth century canada as well as his role in the development of reformed theology in the anglosphere it also examines the quality of his various biographies focusing on key issues such as the nature of religious revival the problem of christianity and slavery and the question of charismatic religious experience his study concludes by examining the relationship between the discipline and profession of church history and asking what is required for one to be considered a church historian this book marks kenneth burke s breakthrough in criticism from the literary and aesthetic into social theory and the philosophy of history in this volume we find burke s first entry into what he calls his theory of dramatism and here also is an important section on the nature of ritual
